

Robin Higa
Parent Leader Consultant

Robin Higa is the author of the Community Café approach to strengthening families and joins with the Community Café Leadership Team in Washington State to continue to refine the work. In Washington State, she was a long-term parent volunteer for the Children's Trust Fund and their Strengthening Families project and was appointed by the governor to the Early Learning Advisory Council.

Her experience includes community-based family support and community mental health projects. She is a past board member and officer of her local Health and Safety Network board, Olympia Family Support Center and Family Support America with more than 20 years of experience in developing effective partnerships with parents in diverse settings. She previously managed a diversity book store which included a job coaching component for people identifying themselves with a developmental disability. Robin has two grown children and credits her grandmothers, family and parent network as lifelines to her work.